

Patagioenas inornata wetmorei

Puerto Rican plain Pigeon

Family (Columbidae)

Kingdom (Animalia)

Status (Endangered)

Description

Large pigeon, pale bluish-gray in color with wine-colored tones on the head, neck, and chest, and dark red legs. It feeds mainly on fruits and seeds. Among its primary food sources are species such as the royal palm and other native trees. It also obtains water from bromeliads and flowers that retain liquid.

Location/Habitat

It is located in the area of Lago de Cidra, within the lower montane rainforest, primarily using two habitats: bamboo forests in ravines or along the lake's edges, and canyons with hardwood trees.
